CHASE TO LEAD FIGHT TO END SALE OF "DOPE"

Bill Makes It Criminal Offense to Dispose of Drugs Without Doctor's Prescription.
DRUGGISTS TO OPPOSE BILL

A bill aiming to end for all time the promiscuous sale in this State of "dope," including that dispensed in patent medicines, will be introduced in the Legislature when S. Frank Chase, head of the Watch and Ward Society, and a number of prominent physicians appear in behalf of a bill making the sale of such drugs without a physician's prescription a criminal offense.

The bill will be opposed, it is said, by every druggist in the State.

The clause in the bill which caused the greatest dissatisfaction, specifies that every physician's prescription for medicine containing any kind of "dope" must be dated, must contain the name of the doctor and the person prescribed for, and shall not, under any condition, be refilled, in other words, a person who wishes a bottle of patent cough medicine or a box of pills containing opium or morphine in any quantity must obtain a doctor's certificate to get it. If he wishes to repeat, his physician will be compelled to bring a new prescription.

CHASE LEADING FIGHT.

Dr. Chase, J. Frank Chase, located by Dr. William P. Rose of Marlboro and other prominent doctors, will lead the fight in behalf of the bill. Dr. Chase is a member of the Watch and Ward Society, and a number of prominent physicians appear in behalf of a bill making the sale of such drugs without a physician's prescription a criminal offense.

Every member of that organization who is a majority of the members in the State is expected to support the bill.

Rev. George L. Cady, D. D., pastor of the Pilgrim Congregational Church, Dorchester, and head of the Greater Boston Go-to-Church Day. Committee of Ministers, gives the final call to the public to go to church today.

Let every one go to church today. Let them study what the churches are doing and trying to do. Co-operation is necessary. This day is not a spasmodic effort. It is a concerted effort to get every one into the habit of church going, to continue going. You need the churches. Renew your faith that you belong to two worlds; Shut the world's hurly burly out, and let the Unseen surge in; Get such a vision of God as shall send you out singing because "His eye is on the sparrow and I know He watches me"; Sit again at the feet of the World's Teacher in brotherhood and Justice; It is worth while!

Rev. George L. Cady, head of Boston Go-to-Church movement.

The meeting was held last evening and was the first of the series. The speaker was Mr. J. H. Morgan, who is the president of the "Town Meetings" and who is a well-known writer and lecturer. He spoke for an hour and a half and his address was on the subject of "The Future of the World." He said that the world is in a state of transition and that the future is uncertain. He said that the only way to make the world better is by the cooperation of all classes and all ages. He said that the "Town Meetings" are a part of this cooperation and that they are a way of making the world better.

Mr. Morgan's address was well received and he was applauded at intervals. He said that the "Town Meetings" are a part of the "New Town Meetings" which are being held in Kingsley Hall. JUDGE BY THE BEST

Never judge six-cylinder merit by cheaply-built sixes, by new and unproved models, or by assembled sixes. Cars built to meet a demand seldom have merit equal to cars which create that demand. Remember that the demand for six-cylinder cars was created by the will be sold under our regular warranty—perfect workmanship and material—BUT any adjustments will be on a basis of

5,000 Miles

This applies also to all "Nobby Tread" Tires now in service on automobiles.

The "Nobby Tread" Tire was placed on the market in 1909—it was built regardless of price competition, and built to accomplish two purposes:

- No. 1.—To give American automobile owners the lowest "cost per mile" tire that could be built.
- No. 2.—To give American automobile owners a real anti-skid tire.

The inherent wear-resisting quality—the quantity of rubber—the quantity of fabric—the methods of construction—all have been rigidly maintained in "Nobby Tread" Tires, and maintained regardless of cost and regardless of price competition.

The result is that—today, through sheer merit alone, "Nobby Tread" Tires are the largest selling high-grade anti-skid tires in the world.

But more than this—solely through their day in and day out mileage records, "Nobby Tread" Tires have proved that they are the most inexpensive tires in the end.

Therefore, based solely on their mileage records of over four years, "Nobby Tread" Tires can be, and now are, placed on this 5,000-mile basis of adjustment.

This applies to each and every "Nobby Tread" Tire in service on automobiles today or unsold in dealers' stock anywhere in the United States, carrying our regular warranty.

Increase in Use of Motors

Fire Departments Being Equipped with Horseless Apparatus.

The use of motors in fire departments is increasing rapidly. In many cities, the fire departments are being equipped with horseless apparatus. This is due to the fact that the use of motors is more efficient and less expensive than the use of horses. In many cases, the fire departments are being equipped with motor trucks, which are more powerful and more maneuverable than horse-drawn trucks. This is a great improvement in the fire department's equipment.

Car Shortage Is Predicted

President MacAlman Says Inven-

President MacAlman predicts a car shortage for the upcoming season. He says that the inventions of the recently busy season will be more than enough to meet the demand. This is a good prediction, as the car industry has been growing rapidly in recent years. The new inventions will provide a wide variety of cars to choose from, and the car shortage will be avoided.

The Largest Drop Forge Plant In The Business

TALKING of economy—take our drop forge plant, which, while it is the largest in the business, is only one small part of our equipment.
Here we operate a large steam hammer with a combined striking power of 6,880,000 pounds or 3,440 tons.

Also there are over a dozen monster presses and ten Ajax forging machines.

There are two 5,000 pound hammers with a producing capacity of 750,000 pounds each; sixteen 2,000 pound hammers with a capacity of 200,000 pounds each; fourteen 1,500 pound hammers with a capacity of 150,000 pounds each, and eight 1,000 pound hammers with a capacity of 10,000 pounds each.

Now—

Take one example of the economy such equipment can effect:

Overland hammers have an attachment whereby the spring-seat of a front axle is so perfectly formed (by the hammer blow) that it needs no additional machining.

This operation takes but 30 seconds.
In smaller plants the same work by slow, small factory methods takes from 30 to 40 minutes.
And this is but one of the hundreds of different economies effected by our huge drop forge equipment.

Now do you see why the Overland costs you 30% less than any other similar car maker?

No. 3—Madame Suffragette

SHE HER running down Broadway, shouting, shrieking, "Hup-leasary!"

Broad of shoulder, flat of feet,
flat hands, redder than a beet,
she would sooner fight than eat

"No one calls her 'Pet,'"— though she gets the public's "good," that she'll win it yet, but we can't forget

It's not for votes she'll plod and plod, she's trying hard to grab a min,
at some day we will tie a can

To Madame Suffragette.

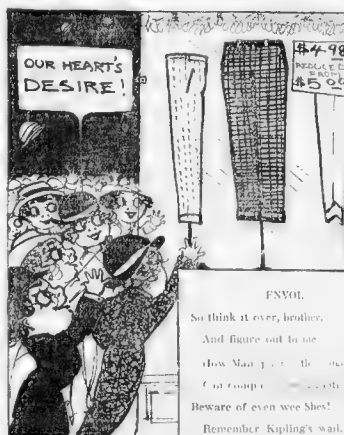

SOME one hung a female curse on this daffy universe—

Women all are crazy to be men.
Yes, and once they get that vote, farewell to the petticoat;
Nothing short of tights will stop them then.
Look her over when she's dressed in her English coat and vest—
That's a fine layout for honeymoons.
Proudly wears a manly shirt, claiming "stays" have always hurt
She's panting for a pair of pantaloons.

When she's in a poker game, it's a cinch that she'll exclaim, "Hang it, must I ante up again?"
 "Say, I thought the sweetest suit, with divided skirt—a beaut!"
 "Yes, I think I'd better raze you ten."
 "Classy girls are wearing socks, and for collars sporting stocks"
 "No more cards; I think I'll just stand pat."
 "Lord! I thought I saw a mouse. I'll take that with this full house; I just can't keep from winning while I chat."

When some foolish bumble head to a suffragette gets wed,
Then his wedding gift should be a skirt.
She leaves him all alone at nights just to show her manly rights—
Woman's independence she'll assert.
Late at night he hears a shout, "Votes for women!" ringing out.
From his window he yells, "Who is that?"
What a pretty sight to see, wifey coming home at three,
Dancing tangoes on his old high hat.

She can drive a motor car faster than a shooting star:
Fifty miles an hour is a joke,
(This a taxicab in two, just like all good drivers do.
Leave nothing but a trail of smoke,
Something happens to the car, sudden jar, and there you are,
If cycle policeman makes a fuss,
Says politely, "Come with me," she replies indignantly,
"That taxicab just ran into US!"

So think it over, brother

Two Stage Beauties in a Dictagraph Trap

DANIEL TAYLOR, the secret service agent of the Customs House, desires to track down and capture Steven Denby, the man suspected of smuggling a $200,000 pearl necklace into the United States. He needs a woman to turn the trick.

Information comes to Taylor that a young society girl named Amy Cartwright has notified the police of the theft of valuable jewelry belonging to her sister Ethel. He is aware of the practice of New York women of wealth to lose vast sums at cards, and means their go, to pay the debts, accounting for their absence by the pretext that they were stolen.

Taylor suspects that Amy Cartwright has pawned Ethel's diamonds, but is not sure. He sends a message to the girl to come to the Customs Office, and then calls upon Ethel to visit the same place. The girls fall into the trap set for them, and the following scene, which you'll see in "Under Cover" at the Plymouth, shows how the truth was discovered:

TAYLOR—I wanted to question your sister about the theft of those diamonds. She had some very interesting things to say.

DUNCAN—Broughten waiting now to see you, sir.

AMY—Excuse me?

TAYLOR—If you'll excuse me I'll leave you ladies to talk things over. (To Ethel) I'd advise you to question your sister, Miss Cartwright, you may find it quite interesting.

ETHEL—My sister and I won't submit to this treatment!

TAYLOR—I'm sorry, but you'll have to wait till my return.

ETHEL—But—

TAYLOR—You'd better. (Looks at Amy) If you want to avoid trouble for your sister.

ETHEL—What happened—what is it—what did he ask you?

AMY—(Sighs) Oh, Ethel, they know—they know.

ETHEL—Know what?

AMY—That man—suspects—I know he does—the way he talked to me.

ETHEL—What are you talking about—suspects what?

AMY—Oh, Ethel, don't let them take me away—oh, don't—don't!

ETHEL—What are you saying?

AMY—Your jewels weren't stolen. I took them—I pawned them.

ETHEL—Amy, what nonsense!

AMY—No, I took them—I had to have money. A woman told me I could get it by pretending to the company the things were stolen, and they'd pay and I did it—I did it!

ETHEL—But, Amy, you swindled the company!

AMY—Yes, but I couldn't help it; I didn't mean to—I didn't!

ETHEL—Why—why—why—for God's sake tell me—why?

AMY—Oh, I had a lot of money gambling—playing bridge.

ETHEL—Playing with whom?

AMY—Oh, they're people you don't know, and one night—we all had dinner together at the Claremont—and they wanted to play bridge. I said no at first, but they insisted—I got excited—I didn't realize how much I was losing—I kept on trying to get even—but I lost a thousand dollars.

ETHEL—What happened then?

AMY—I couldn't pay, of course, and the other women said they'd expose me and tell you and mother—and put me in jail. I didn't know what to do—I went out of my head, I think. A man there, Philip Shone, offered to lend me the money.

ETHEL—You didn't borrow from that man?

AMY—I did. What else could I do if you weren't here, and I had to do something right away?

ETHEL—But what about the jewels?

AMY—When he'd lost me the money—oh, I can't tell even you, Ethel, what he said. I never knew there could be men like that.

When I wouldn't—couldn't go away with him and do as he wanted—oh, he threatened all sorts of things. I had only one idea then—to pay him back, no matter what happened. I pawned my diamonds and paid him.

ETHEL—My poor sister—my little Amy—I'm so sorry for you. Why—why didn't you tell, so I could help you?

AMY—I was afraid to. I meant to tell you next month when we get that money from father's estate. I thought we could pay the company then, so I wouldn't be a thief any more. Oh, but I'm glad I told you now. I've been so frightened.

ETHEL—There—there—there!

AMY—And this man knows. I could tell he did—that's why he sent for me. Can't you see now he suspects—can't you?

ETHEL—Yes, yes, I see—that's what he's been leading up to, but he can't be sure or he'd have accused you direct. Oh, thank God you've told me.

AMY—Oh, Ethel, don't let them take me away—don't let them put me in prison; I would die. Don't—please don't let 'em!

ETHEL—Ssh! Ssh! Don't say anything before him, no matter what happens; he may try to trap you. Let me do all the talking, no matter what he says, don't answer him. Do you understand?

AMY—I'll try—I'll try!

ETHEL—Stop crying. You've got to keep control of yourself. He doesn't know anything. If you'll just do as I say I'll get you out of it somehow. I'll save you—I promise—you believe me, don't you?

AMY—Yes, Ethel, I believe you.

ETHEL—Now talk of something else—anything?

AMY—Oh, I'm afraid—I'm afraid I'll break down—I can't do it—can't I go home now?

ETHEL—Yes, that'd be best, quick, before he comes back.

TAYLOR—I'm sorry, Miss Cartwright, but you can't leave.

ETHEL—My sister isn't well. She must go home.

TAYLOR—I've listened to your sister's confession. It's very complete. (Lifting dictagraph off desk) You see, we have a dictagraph here. Young woman, you're under arrest.

ETHEL—No, no, don't take her, take me. She's only a child, don't sell her life—I'll go. I'll do whatever you like, it doesn't matter about me. For God's sake, don't do anything to my sister.

TAYLOR—She's guilty, and the law.

ETHEL—Please don't send her to prison, it seems one pays what difference does it make to you? If you'll just let her go I'll do anything I can't here anything I can't.

TAYLOR—Yes, there is. You can accept my proposition to enter the secret service of the United States customs.

ETHEL—Oh, yes, yes, anything!

TAYLOR—Now you're talking. Then we won't send your sister to prison.

AMY—Oh!

TAYLOR—We'll leave that little episode of the jewels as between her and her conscience, so long as you do what I ask. I'll let you know when I need you. It may be tonight, it may be in a month; but when I want you—

ETHEL—I shall be ready.

DUNCAN (entering)—Yes, sir.

TAYLOR—Get out! I'm busy!

DUNCAN—I thought you'd want to know the Mauretania's at quarter-nine.

TAYLOR—Wait a minute. Now good afternoon, Miss Cartwright. Remember what's at stake—your future, your sister's happiness, my silence depends on your not falling now.

ETHEL—I shall not fall you. (She takes Amy out.)

DUNCAN—Broughten pined that Steven Denby did not declare a necklace.

TAYLOR—Ah, then we were right. Denby is smuggling it.

DUNCAN—I've got Ford and Haunet ready to meet him at the dock.

TAYLOR—Don't send 'em. There's to be no sex.

DUNCAN—No sex?

TAYLOR—Let 'em all three sit through with it—ordinary examination.

Trail 'em to Long Island, to be sure that they don't slip it to some one else, on the way—but no loss, no arrests. I've that young girl, Amy Cartwright, followed, take on a warrant for her arrest. I may need it.

TAYLOR—Then you can use the girl.

FAYLOR—Yes. Change your clothes; bring Gibbs with you; meet me at a station at six o'clock.

DUNCAN—What are you going to do?

FAYLOR—I'm going to make Miss Ethel Cartwright get that necklace.

Smiles from Everywhere

She Tried Hard Enough.
Mrs. Flint, a kind-hearted matron, was much disturbed that Martha, her new maid, was obliged to sleep in a cold room on the top floor.

"Martha," said she, remembering the good old-fashioned custom of her grandmothers, "it is going to be a very cold night, and I think you had better take a mattress to bed with you."

"Yes, ma'am," the girl quietly assented.

Mrs. Flint, happy in the thought that her maid was comfortable, slept soundly.

When Martha announced breakfast the following morning the mistress asked:

"Well, Martha, how did you get along with the mattress?"

Martha breathed a deep, reminiscent sigh.

The Customer Knew Best.
"Generally run down, sir?" queried the druggist, "slightly seedy and want a good tonicing up?"

The pale-faced customer nodded. "Well, I've the very thing for you, Jenkins' Juvenator. Three doses a day and more if necessary. Fifty a bottle."

"No, thanks," said the pale patient.

"But, my dear sir, it's the rage of the day, Jenkins' Juvenator is the greatest discovery of modern medicine. It's the rage of the season. Every one is rejuvenating, you might say."

"Yes, but I think I'd rather try something else," replied the customer.

"Nonsense," pressed the druggist. "I tell you Jenkins' Juvenator will have more effect on you in a single day than any other medicine could have in a month. It cures everything from coughs to corns. What is your objection to it?"

"Why, nothing, only I'm Jenkins'."

Well, Wasn't He Right?
A teacher was questioning a class of boys on the subject of "birds." Having received correct answers to the questions about feathers, bill, feet and wings, he put the question: "What is a bird can do that I am unable to do?"

"Fly," was the answer he hoped to get. For several moments the boys thought, but gave no answer. At last one held up his hand.

"Well, my lad, what is it?"

"Lay an egg, sir," said the boy.

Twentieth Century Way.
Miss Varney was trying to illustrate to her youthful Sunday-school class the lesson, "Turn your back on evil." To make it practical, she said:

"Now, suppose, children, one of your schoolmates should strike you, and the next day you should bring him an apple, that would be one way of turning your back on evil."

A little girl, sitting in one of the front seats, raised her hand.

"Well, Elizabeth," said the teacher, "what is it?"

"Then," said Elizabeth firmly, "he would strike you again to get another apple."

There were reports that all was not smooth among the "big boys" of the American League. One report was to the effect that President Gillette of the league and President Charles W. Wolfman, owner of the Boston Red Sox, had agreed about Toronto. Another report was that both Toronto and Buffalo would be dropped, and that the organization would start the season with six clubs. Fred Bradley of Cleveland was here to grab the Toronto franchise should it come on the market. The following representatives attended: St. Louis, Otto Ruff, Edward Stange, Walter Pitt, Chicago, Harry E. Felt, Madison, A. P. Gordon, and others.

Well, You Know How It Is
When a Girl Is Ab-

HOWSON LOTT

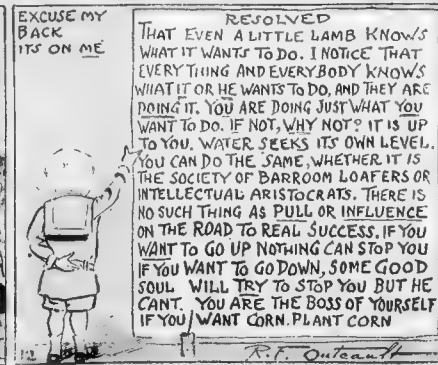

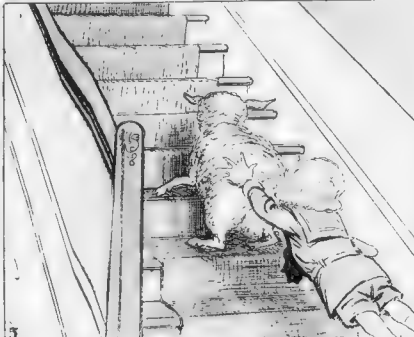

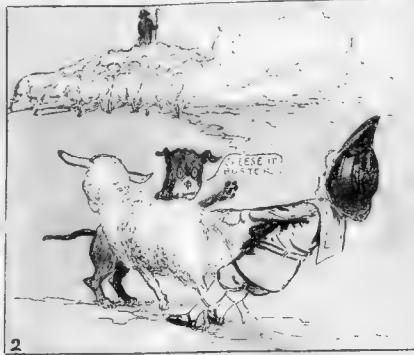

Har! Har! It Made Cousin Willie Laugh! But He Didn't Laugh Long.

He followed her to school one day. They tried to put him out. Which made the little girls all laugh, the boys all raised a shout. The lamb - he ran around the room and, never seemed to tire, until at last the stove upset and set the house on fire. The bells all rang, the firemen came and raised a lot of noise; they saved the books and slates and girls and several of the boys. When Mary thought about her lamb she raised an awful wail - Just then a fireman pulled him out and saved him by the tail.

And They Say "Gentle as a Lamb!"

IF NOT, WHY NOT? IT IS UP TO YOU. WATER SEEKS ITS OWN LEVEL. YOU CAN DO THE SAME, WHETHER IT IS THE SOCIETY OF BARROOM LOAFERS OR INTELLECTUAL ARISTOCRATS. RECLAIMING THE DESERT WASTES OF THE GARDEN OF EDEN

Immense Engineering Works That Will Store Up Water for Irrigation and Prevent Floods Like That of Noah's Day by Regulating the Flow

THE great step in restoring the ancient Garden of Eden to full use and cultivation has been taken.

A great barrage, or masonry dam, at Hindia, on the Euphrates River, has been completed. It was constructed by Sir William Willcocks, the British engineer who was formerly director of irrigation in Egypt. He carried out the present work on behalf of the Turkish Government.

By means of this barrier a vast volume of water will be stored up and used to irrigate an area of 5,000,000 acres, which has hitherto been principally desert and only very imperfectly cultivated where it lies along the banks of the river.

The vast region which will be affected by this work was the centre of civilization and the granary of the world from the earliest Biblical times down to the age of Alexander the Great. It was the cradle of the human race.

There is little doubt that one part of this country, that lying near the sources of the Euphrates and Tigris rivers, is the Garden of Eden described by the Book of Genesis. After telling of the beauty and fertility of the Garden, which enabled Adam and Eve to live without working before the fall, Genesis says: "And a river went out of Eden

Adam and Eve Expelled from the Garden of Eden. A Painting by L. Beroud, Which Shows the Scenery Near the Head Waters of the Euphrates.

Newly Opened Barrage on the Euphrates That Has Restored 5,000,000 Acres to Cultivation.

to water the Garden; and from thence it was parted, and became into four heads."—(Genesis, chapter 2, verse 10.)

Genesis further tells us that the names of the rivers were Euphrates, Pison, Gihon and Hiddekel. Pison has been identified with a branch of the Euphrates now called the Habbania, Hiddekel with another branch called the Fohlawia and Gihon with the Tigris. Thus there are four rivers starting today from the same region, which must have been the Garden of Eden.

The whole country lying between these rivers was in ancient times called Mesopotamia. It was formerly well irrigated and supplied with great engineering works. In the time of Alexander the Great it was the greatest food producing country in the world.

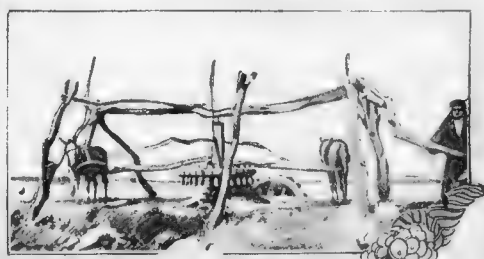

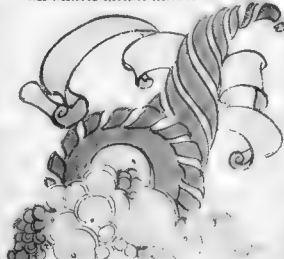

During the era of Mohammedan barbarism it fell into decay, and today it is largely a desert, visited by occasional severe floods. Where cultivation is carried on it is done with water wheels worked by hand or by donkey power and with other primitive tools. The region abounds with ancient cities and ruins, such as Babylon and Nippur.

Another important work being carried on by the British engineers is to deepen the Habbania channel leading to Lake Habbania. This will allow the water of the Euphrates to escape when it rises above a certain point and thus avert many disastrous floods.

An overflow of the Euphrates at this point is believed by many Biblical critics to have been the flood of Noah's day.

How LIGHTS That Are Too BRIGHT Injure Your HEALTH

By F. LAURENT GODINEZ,

The record of the eye EM is made by a camera or by a recording device which measures the intensity of the light by means of a photocell. In the muscles of the eye, the contraction is a glancing contraction, the eye muscles are not completely occupied and the contraction is not complete, and results in the headache.

There is a great deal of knowledge as to the three questions mentioned on the divorce grounds. As far as knowledge, however, there are often false ideas. A woman may know that her husband is not a good person, but she may not know how to make for a divorce. It is not that the law would be impossible for the married couple

Mr. George Grossmith's Own Smile.
(Group in Rehearsal Drawn by Himself)

GEOFFREY GROSSMITH, the famous Gaiety Comedian, explains the Secret of the Marriages of English Chorus Girls to Men of Titles.

By George Grossmith,
In His Book, "Gaiety and George Grossmith."

HAVING been married six years to the Hon. Henry Lyndhurst, Baron Clifford, I am in a position to explain the secret of the marriages of English chorus girls to men of titles. It is a very simple matter, and I will explain it in a few words. The secret is that the chorus girls are very beautiful and very charming, and the men of titles are very rich and very powerful. The chorus girls are very popular with the men of titles, and the men of titles are very popular with the chorus girls. This is the secret of the marriages of English chorus girls to men of titles.

But the chorus girls are not only beautiful and charming, they are also very intelligent and very well educated. They are very popular with the men of titles, and the men of titles are very popular with the chorus girls. This is the secret of the marriages of English chorus girls to men of titles.

To Cut Apart these Interesting "Siamese Twins"

Queer "Who's Who" Problems of Little Madeleine and Suzanne Durand, United by Tissue and a Common Abdominal Cavity

Another View of Madeleine and Suzanne Durand.

TWO LITTLE GIRLS, MADELEINE and Suzanne Durand, who were born in Paris, France, and are united by a common abdominal cavity, are the subjects of a surgical operation to separate them.

The twins were born on September 18, 1894, and have developed wonderfully up to the present. Their bodies are not planning an operation to separate them, because of the abnormal bond between them. The girls are and an individual life is possible, but other else make their existence a hard task.

Just imagine how you would feel if you were a girl joined to another, so that every breath you took and every step you took, and you could not even listen to your sweetheart's most impassioned word without the intrusion of a third person.

Dr. E. La Follie, surgeon of the Central Hospital, and member of the Academy of Medicine, has made a special study of the case and will take part in the proposed operation to separate the twins. He described the case to your reporter.

THE new fashion tendency is a dominant note in the varied and varied fashions. Light, airy, close fitting, sleeves, a la the normal armhole and then collar, are a mark of the Spring styles that are coming. Attention from all the smart women. This new tendency is of course, only apparent in the daytime styles. The evening costume, on the contrary, is liberally superfluous. That is, what there is left of the bodice.

Never before in the history of modern dress has man left off so much of her clothing, and that which is left is all, and put up with a somebody to make it that is very beautiful and very alluring, but it does take on a breath away.

A few months ago, when we were coming to the end of our winter power, the extreme transparency was not so much, we think, at present. The fur has had a birth and is dying as we speak. The smart woman will wear a bit of fur on her coat, but not on her dress or evening costume. The new kind of fur was made when the wild creatures of the world were still a part of the world and were not so much of the world as they are now.

In the future of the two little even a costume. I am sure that you this week you will observe the absence of fur and the almost total elimination of any trimming on the robe. Pleat is better than any other thing for the short tunic, in the pale green charmeuse, with that most which appeals to the decorative.

The Spring tailor-mades will be built on severe lines. Instead of the "dressed" tailors, most will wear a row of one of the new fabrics.

The little tailored coat one of which I am sending you a picture is built of one of the newest light weight striped wools. The severity of the skirt is unaltered by anything aside from the slit at the hem.

Mule Driver Beat The Gatling Gun

Copyright, 1914, by the Star Company
Great Britain Rights Reserved

YOUNG man on the staff of this newspaper, James Mullins, was not long ago investigating conditions and looking for excitement in Mexico as one of the soldiers in the Foreign Legion. We publish here a brief account that he gives of one Orozco, once a mule driver, then a general, now dead, and of that Orozco's method of fighting the machine gun.

Reading is wasted, unless you THINK as you read. As you read the Mexican mule driver's plan for overcoming the rain of Maxim bullets, think in what way that story applies to you, and to your problems in life. Here is James Mullins's tribute to Orozco's ingenuity:

PASCUAL OROZCO'S STRATAGEM.

Pascual Orozco was a mule driver, bandit leader of Madero's rebellion, then leader of the rebellion against Madero, and then a Federal general, and now, to fill out a career typically Mexican, he is dead, killed fighting. I'll tell you now Orozco's ingenuity in a method of attacking machine-gun fire that has been used with remarkable effect in the recent bloody battles in Chihuahua.

Orozco, in his frequent skirmishes with old Porfirio Diaz's blue-clad Federalists, two years ago, invariably found that the enemy's machine guns were the most formidable part of the opposing equipment. Consequently they were most productive of fatalities among his men. His sturdy mountaineers to whom the rifle's crack meant no more than the pop of a cork along Broadway means to a New Yorker, nevertheless shuddered when the machine gun's saccadic whirr broke out on the battle line. Shielded by rocks or brush a son of one of Mexico's old aristocratic families, of which there were many in Don Porfirio's army, could sit perched up behind the sights of his three-hundred-a-minute Maxim and with an accuracy gained at Tlalpam Military School, carefully and precisely mow down Orozco's simple steeply-hatted patriots by the dozen or the score, or as many as happened to be with out shelter at the time.

This was disconcerting, if not highly disastrous, to the cause of freedom.

So Pascual Orozco, former mule driver, set himself to THINK, a characteristic that explains why he became a general, and if death had not come along, might have been one Mexican President.

The ordinary machine gun is mounted on three legs, and is directed by an operator, who sits on a little seat like a bicycle seat, attached to the rear-most leg. Here, while an assistant feeds the cartridge belts from the boxes at his side, he swings the gun up or down or sideways on its swivel, sweeping his front with a veritable hail of steel missiles. His control of the weapon is steady. Should he concentrate on a group of men, for instance, he could mow them down literally as a reaper does grain. Opposed to a trench, he can direct his fire along the top of it. At such times—with the bullets knocking up the sand in sports as a passing summer shower disturbs the dust of the street—the mere popping up of one's head to look is invariably fatal. And any attempt at returning the fire is manifestly impossible. Indeed, so accurate are these weapons in the hands of a skilled operator, that during Madero's rebellion there was a tradition among the more ignorant insurgents that the Federal machine gunners were able to cut grass with them.

It can be seen that Pascual Orozco, to use a phrase of the day, "had to work out for himself."

But, as it happened, the tall, straight, grave-faced mule driver was one of those who believe that nothing is impossible until it has been proved so.

The solution came to him. It was a plan so simple, so easy to operate and so effective in attacking the deadly rapid-firers that other rebel leaders doubtless said to themselves, when they heard of it: "I wonder I never thought of that."

Orozco's plan was this: He had his men dig shallow trenches or rifle pits a distance of a mile or so in length. Then he stationed his best marksmen near the ends of this protection in front of the machine he intended to defend. He stationed his men, stationed two or three yards apart, and at the end of the trench he posted his best marksman, or if he had it a machine gunner.

When the Federalists confidently opened fire with their machine guns, the range of a thousand yards or so, the whole trench blacked back until the machine-gun operator located the range. Then the rebels in the trench ducked below its surface. Consequently the bullets of the machine gun kicked the dust harmlessly above their heads. As soon as the storm had passed one end of the trench, however, the men in that section of the trench raised up quickly and shot at the machine operator. And when the Federal turned his fire back on these annoying enemies, the insurgents in the other end of the trench popped up and shot at him in turn.

And so, no matter how brave and skillful the Federal machine-gun operator, or how earnestly he endeavored to silence the rebel fire, from some part of the mule-driver's line, steady or tossed up, the mule-driver's keen-eyed mountaineers were awaiting at him over the sights of their long-barreled Mausers and searching him out behind his steel shield or breastwork of rocks with their unerring eyes.

Of course, under these conditions, there could be but one result to the conflict. The press dispatches actually gave it this way: "The rebels, after hours of fighting the Federal machine guns were silenced, their operators being either killed or wounded."

So much for Orozco, the mule driver, who became a general because he used his brain, and who lost his life because he could not resist the temptation to get out in the thickest of it and fight.

His friends on one occasion came back, as Mr. Mullins relates, "flushed with victory and bringing with them eighteen machine guns taken from the enemy."

There was nothing complicated in what he did.

He realized the WEAK SPOT in HIS DEFENSE. He kept one end of his fighting machine ready for attack, while the other end was under fire. And the Maxim guns were silenced.

First, it is interesting to think that in this year of "civilization" men in tens of thousands are lying in ditches, behind rocks and trees,

Instead of Merely Fighting, He Began THINKING. He Discovered That Even a Gatling Gun Could Not Shoot in Two Directions at Once. He Arranged That His Men NOT Under Attack Should Cut Down the Maxim Gun Operators.

This Is an Interesting Story of Murder in Mexico Under the Name of War. It Has a Moral That Applies to Every Man in His Own Life and Problems.

only a few miles from our border, murdering each other with incredible ferocity.

This nation looks on, as a powerful man might watch children or idiots murdering each other, and does NOTHING. This is called a Christian nation. The Mexicans are PARTICULARLY CHRISTIAN, and they are murdering each other as viciously and brutally as was ever done in all the world's history.

A fine comment on civilization and Christianity combined!

All that we have done is to organize a police force to interfere with the individual man committing murder.

But the moment murder breaks out WHOLESALE and thousands begin to fight, everybody says, "Let them kill!"

There is, however, in the mule driver's idea something more important FOR YOU than a tale of murder on a Mexican hillside.

Every man being is under fire. He has his troubles, his temptations, his difficult problems. He can learn from the thinking and the scheming of men at war.

You all know the story of Napoleon and his campaign in Italy—where the Austrian generals opposed him.

Those Austrian generals wanted to be sure that they would meet Napoleon. THEY MET HIM.

They were fighting along the river. The Austrians put half of the force on one side of the river and half on the other side. They did not want to miss Napoleon.

He did not want to miss them, either. BUT HE KEPT ALL OF HIS MEN ON THE SAME SIDE OF THE RIVER.

He met one-half of the Austrians and beat them.

Then he crossed the river, found the other half, and beat them.

And this he did over and over. The poor Austrian generals died without quite knowing how it was that the thin, white-faced, sickly young Corsican from Paris made their splendid schemes and military tactics ridiculous.

Napoleon, of course, knew perfectly well what he was doing—as he always did—until foolish eating, neglect of health and lack of sleep had ruined his train.

Of everything that he did—amazing to old-fashioned fighters—Napoleon might have said, as he said about his crossing the Alps in winter, "There was nothing wonderful about it. I deserve no credit, except for not believing those who said it could not be done."

Once he needed to cripple the enemy by killing as many of their men as possible. He won the victory, and his artillerymen were shooting at the flying soldiers crossing a frozen lake.

The guns were high above the lake. Napoleon looked for a second and gave the order, "Shoot at the ice." His gunners broke the ice, and the miserable, retreating troops were engulfed and drowned.

In his Italian campaign Napoleon knew that his army could very comfortably and easily beat first one-half of the Austrian army and then the other half, so he kept all of his forces together, and he had his entire energy to ATTACK THE ENEMY EACH TIME.

Orozco, the Mexican mule driver, now dead because he lost one throw in the dice game of war, had some of the simple thoughts that made Napoleon great.

He did not expose his men or condemn them to death by having them fight back at the Maxim machine gun.

His trench was long, so long that the Maxim could not cover all of it at once. And while the Maxim was firing at one end of the trench his men in the other end would rise up swiftly and fire at the Maxim gunner, then sink back into the ditch before the gun could be switched to their end of the trench. And immediately, when the gun was switched, the men at the other end rose and fired.

And thus a long line of men with inferior weapons, but well directed, could overcome and capture machine guns, each of them capable of firing three hundred bullets in a minute, each of them absolutely invincible if the men had stood up and tried to fight face to face.

This country is probably not going to war. If we should have trouble with Japan—trying to dictate land legislation to California, or with some other foolish nation—it would be a matter of battleships. Few of the young men of the country would take part in the proceedings.

The average young American need not his lightning, and win his victories without brass buttons, brass bands or a repeating rifle.

Without the buttons or the rifle there is plenty of fighting for every man. And in the experience of soldiers like Napoleon or the simple-minded Mexican mule driver, there are lessons for thoughtful boys and young men.

Napoleon beat the Austrians BECAUSE HE USED ALL OF HIS ENERGY IN EACH FIGHT. HE DIDN'T DIVIDE IT.

You perhaps can beat your enemy and win YOUR FIGHT if you keep all of your energy together FOR EACH FIGHT. Every day is a fight for the man trying to succeed.

If you divide your forces—giving, for instance, one-half to one side of the river, which is foolishness, amusement and dissipation in the evening, and one-half to the other side of the river, which is work in the day time, YOU WILL BE BEATEN AS THE AUSTRIANS WERE.

But if you keep your forces together, if you feel that no matter where you meet difficulties, or where the enemy faces you, YOU CAN BEAT HIM BECAUSE YOU HAVE ALL YOUR POWER AT HAND. THEN YOU MAY WIN AS NAPOLEON WON, WHEN THE REVOLUTIONISTS SENT HIM DOWN TO RE-SENT THE FRENCH PEOPLE.

From the Mexican mule driver, who made his men at one end of the ditch lie down when the machine gun was pointed their way, you may learn TO KEEP OUT OF TEMPTATION AND AVOID ITS FIRE.

It would have seemed very brave for the Mexicans to stand up all along the ditch and let the Maxim gun mow them down like grass.

But the men with the rifles knew—or, Orozco knew for them—that they had no chance against the gun throwing three hundred bullets a minute. And when the gun was pointed their way they hid.

A wise man, who has found that there is temptation or a powerful evil stronger than himself, knows enough TO HIDE WHEN THE TEMPTATION IS POINTED HIS WAY.

"Lead us not into temptation," means in war, "Lead us not in front of the machine gun." And in a life of peace it means, "Teach us to avoid temptation rather than stand up and brave it."

There are a million men with good resolutions in this country going to failure as rapidly as they can because they merely resolve not to do a thing—INSTEAD OF KEEPING AWAY FROM TEMPTATION—INSTEAD OF LYING DOWN IN THE DITCH LIKE OROZCO'S MOUNTAINEERS WHEN THE GUN POINTS THEIR WAY.

The Mexican outlaw teaches young men also that the brain should be used before defeat is admitted.

With ten times as many soldiers and rifles, Orozco without thought would have been helpless in the face of the machine gun.

A timid man would have made up his mind to retreat, as soon as he saw the deadly apparatus ready for work, sweeping the ground with bullets like the water from a hose pipe.

So has you know from the description above, the whole thing changed when the men with little rifles added common sense and a PLAN to their feeble arms.

That is what will happen to many a man in life who is discouraged and hopeless. A PLAN and common sense will make possible that which seems impossible.

You can concentrate all of your power on the problem before you. You can keep out of attack and out of temptation—most men can if they will. And you too may end with victory and the pleasant feeling that filled the Mexicans when they brought back the eighteen "silent" Maxim guns.

The main thing is to know WHAT YOUR PROBLEM IS. Once you recognize the machine gun that threatens you, look for its weak point. Then use your brain—and good luck to you.

The famous Marmalade Prescription has been prepared in tablet form. These little tablets contain nothing but the elements that go to make up the best things which produce fast, clean, strong, lasting, service, fitness and health. Marmalade Tablets are the only way to move the fat remaining at the rate of from 10 to 15 ounces per day. You need not confuse Marmalade Tablets with harmful patent drugs as they are not. They are the only way to get rid of the fat in your stomach and take the food you eat. They build up the tissues of the digestive organs and correct those places so that they produce the best results. Fat is the enemy of men, women and women all over the land today. It is the cause of all the diseases of the body and of firm figures and normal life because of the little tablets. This is the only druggist everywhere carries them in stock and will sell them to you. If your druggist does not have them you would rather send $10, the price of a case to the Maumida Company, Farmer Bldg., I.roit, Mich., they will send them to you.

The scene of the third act in the crypt of the castle where the body of Flora awaits burial. Polson has been placed on her lips in anticipation of the coming of Avito. He comes, kisses the beloved mouth for the last time and dies. Manfredo follows and, unable to resist a like temptation, he too sips the poison, and while yet in his death agonies is stabbed by his sightless father, who mistakes his son for the lover. And in this wise the tragedy is brought to a wonderfully impressive close.

INSTRUCTIONS FOR USING COLORS

First cut off a strip of skin of the same size as large as thin, placing each strip in a column. Put each strip in a column of seven strips, and then lay the strips in a row. This will give you enough of each color to color several specimens. Always try your color palette on a piece of paper before using it on a specimen, and work down on a row, and it is best to cover the large surface first, and then carry out the details of the portion later. In laying the strips on the paper, be sure that the color is better in hand so that if any mistake is made or a color is used in the wrong place, it can be absorbed by the use of the blotter. To secure delicate tints in portions such as eye, etc., it is a good plan to lay down a small piece of color, which when rubbed over with a brush will give the desired tint. In some where there is a large area of color, use a little pure color that can be taken from the color pad with a moist brush. To secure both color, mix orange and red.
